Why TMC Retaining Power

Factor 01: The SIR Narrative

CM Mamata Banerjee effectively framed the debate around the exclusion of 90 lakh voters (including 65 lakh ASDD) through the SIR process as an attack on Bengali identity. This narrative galvanized support, particularly in rural and semi-urban areas, consolidating the vote against the BJP.

Factor 02: Highest Voter Turnout in History

The state recorded the highest voter turnout in its history with 92.6% in phase 1 and 92.27% in phase 2 polling. This is due to the narrative of deleting names if people did not vote this election, which may go in favor of the TMC. Also, the high turnout is simply because of the reduced total number of voters in the electoral roll due to the SIR process.

Factor 03: Bengali Identity Politics

The TMC played "fishy" politics by setting a narrative of stopping people from eating non-veg if the BJP comes to power. This was heavily amplified by CM Mamata, forcing BJP candidates to campaign with fish in their hands and central ministers to eat non-veg in Bengal.

Factor 04: Incumbency & Welfare Schemes

The TMC government's extensive welfare programs like Lakshmir Bhandar (direct cash transfers to women), Swasthya Sathi (health insurance), and the latest Banglar Yuba Sathi have created deep grassroots loyalty, particularly among women, rural voters, and youth who form a decisive electoral bloc.

Factor 05: BJP's Declining Momentum

After peaking at 77 seats in 2021, the BJP faces organizational fragmentation, internal lobbying to destabilize their own members, and an inability to consolidate the anti-incumbency vote. Our ground intelligence suggests their vote share has contracted from the 2021 high of 38.1%.

Factor 06: Fragmented Opposition

The Left Front and Congress have not been able to regain their historical bases. The Left's organizational structure continues to weaken, and Congress's presence is largely limited to Murshidabad. The ISF's alliance with the Left may help in select pockets but will not shift the macro picture.

Factor 07: Social Media & Ground Sentiment

POLIQ's social media and ground intelligence tracking shows the TMC maintaining a significant digital presence for the "Anti-Bengali BJP" narrative. Ground-level sentiment surveys across 200+ constituencies indicate sustained satisfaction with state governance, featuring a 52% approval rate for Mamata Banerjee as the CM, along with localized pockets of anti-incumbency that are insufficient to alter outcomes.

Factor 08: State's One-Sided History

The state has a unique political history of not having tight contests between parties. Either a party wins by a landslide or loses big, with nothing in between. This trend may continue this election as well, where either the TMC or the BJP will win by a landslide. However, we predict that the TMC will win by a landslide in this election.
